October 29, 2009

Washington, DC – Today, Rep. Ben Ray Luján issued the following statement on the launch the House of Representatives' new blended health insurance reform legislation.

"It is the will and commitment of the American people that have carried health insurance reform through to this day. While this bill is not perfect, it is a step in the right direction. Listening to communities across my district, I am encouraged that this legislation includes language supporting tribal health, consumer protections, rural community access, and a public option. Under our current health insurance system, too many families have had their financial future imperiled, too many have been denied coverage, and too many people are suffering."